Veradigm's AccelRx™ is designed to simplify meeting the requirements needed to dispense the increasing number of specialty medications being prescribed. AccelRx leverages broad industry partnerships built over decades of e-prescribing and prior authorization to deliver a user-friendly solution that is helping providers spend less time on phone calls and managing faxes while driving higher patient medication adherence.

Despite representing only 3% of all prescriptions written in the U.S., in 2020, specialty medications are expected to account for up to 50% of the total spend on prescription medications. For a specialty medication prescription to be filled, it must pass through a broad cross-section of healthcare stakeholders, including payers, specialty pharmacies and specialty Rx hubs. The result can be extended patient wait times.

"AccelRx is another example of Veradigm spanning the healthcare ecosystem to find mutually beneficial ways for key stakeholders to work together and to improve patient care," said Tom Langan, CEO of Veradigm. "By delivering a solution that can automate and simplify the complex series of reviews required to fill a specialty prescription, we believe we can help a broad group of healthcare providers to reduce the time it takes to get these medications to patients."

Combining one of healthcare's largest prescriber bases with broad industry partnerships built over decades of e-prescribing and prior authorization leadership, Veradigm AccelRx delivers a solution designed to streamline specialty medication fulfillment and reduce patient wait times.

"There is a growing number of patients affected by the extended delays in receiving their prescribed specialty medications, and it's a challenge for many segments of the healthcare market including patients and providers," said Paul Black, Allscripts Chief Executive Officer. "That's why it is so important to be part of the solution to address this growing need."

As the impact of specialty medications on healthcare in the U.S. continues to grow, so does the number of patients and providers who can benefit from the value AccelRx provides. As a result, Veradigm is actively engaged in developing ongoing partnerships with key healthcare industry stakeholders to continue expanding the scope of sophistication of the AccelRx solution throughout 2020 and beyond.
